Your Pensions, Savings and Investments newsletter from Inspire Financial Solutions Ltd

Make sure your money works as hard as possible for you.

» We live in interesting times. We've got Brexit, a Trump Presidency, plus we have an emboldened Russia. Additionally, the Pound has fluctuated, and UK inflation is on an upward cycle.

However, we have also seen some fairly resilient Stock Markets in the UK, US and elsewhere.

What it may mean for you

Challenging times can be good, as well as bad, for financial planning. Either way, it often introduces even more elements that have to be considered.

But first, it's worthwhile to take a step back and consider that, whilst Brexit will have a generational effect; much of what is occurring may relate more to the short-term. Yet, financial planning should often address the longer-term picture.

To put this into perspective, let's think back just 10 years. In 2007, the iPhone had only just launched, Facebook was in its infancy, and Woolworths was on every high street! As for the financial marketplace, the term 'sub-prime mortgage crisis' was only just coming into common usage.

Financial check-up

Much has changed over the ensuing 10 years. But while it's important to think longer-term, the demands of daily life mean that, understandably, many of us live largely in the 'here and now'. Perhaps juggling a busy family and social life, alongside work commitments, which may leave little time to focus on finances.

So that's why it makes sense to seek professional advice from individuals, such as us, who will work with you to assess the bigger picture. For us, this means being mindful of meeting both the shorter-term needs along the way (such as property purchase, university costs, or special treats), and longer-term planning to ensure you can fully enjoy your later years.

As part of this process, we'd consider your requirements and financial position, the mood of the financial markets, product choices, various initiatives introduced, and the tax benefits on offer.

It pays to take advice

In fact, recent research has shown that those who took financial advice (between 2001 and 2007) were, on average, around £41,000 better off by the 2012-2014 period, than those who didn't.

Numerous developments

It's wise to take advice when you consider some of the key issues set out in this publication, along with the following:

Bank Rate interest rise - The increase this November in the Bank of England's Bank Rate from 0.25% to 0.5% is the first such rise since July 2007. Back then, the rate hit 5.75%, although, for much of the following decade the Bank Rate did sit at 0.5%. This decision is partly influenced by concerns that inflation will continue to rise.

(Source: Bank of England, November 2017)

Inflation - for the first time in a long time, we now need to be aware of the impact of inflation, as the Consumer Prices Index (CPI) now sits at 3%, way above the 2% target. (Source: Office for National Statistics, September 2017, released October 2017)

So, please do get in touch if you would like to discuss your financial needs.

HM Revenue & Customs practice and the law relating to taxation are complex and subject to individual circumstances and changes which cannot be foreseen.

TAX BENEFITS for you...

There are plenty of allowances to consider, and here are a few of the main ones...

Inheritance Tax (IHT) is a fairly emotive tax, as many view it as double taxation. A tax paid by the beneficiaries on money that may have already been taxed throughout the life of the person providing the inheritance.

As it stands, the individual threshold is £325,000, and beyond that there's 40% tax to be paid. Married couples and civil partners can also combine their thresholds meaning the last remaining person's estate can be worth £650,000 before the 40% tax is applied.

Additionally, the new 'home allowance' may also be applicable - the Residence Nil Rate Band (RNRB) - which is designed to make it easier to pass on the family home to direct descendants without incurring IHT.

This will be phased in gradually from the 2017/18 tax year and (if the value of the estate is less than £2m) it could increase each individual's threshold to £500,000 by 2020/21. Thereby, raising the threshold for a couple to £1m before the 40% tax is payable.

Individual Savings Accounts (ISAs)

This is one of the most obvious and available tax-saving devices.

An ISA is basically a 'wrapper' into which you can place cash or stocks and shares up to a certain limit each year.

For the 2016/17 tax year the total individual limit was £15,240. For 2017/18, it's even better, as the individual threshold now stands at £20,000, which means that a couple, for example, could invest up to £40,000 in this period!

Any interest, income or growth that you receive within an ISA will be free from any personal liability to Income or Capital Gains Tax.

To give you a feel for what this could amount to, consider this. If someone used up all of their individual ISA allowances since its launch in 1999 (including the 2017/18 tax year), this could have added up to over £186,500 of contributions, with any growth on that amount being sheltered from tax!

ISAs and Death

According to HM Revenue & Customs, 150,000 married ISA savers die each year.

Tax benefits can now even be applied to ISAs beyond a person's death, if it's passed onto the surviving spouse, or civil partner.

In the past, the ISA tax 'wrapper' passed away with its owner, and the money that had been sheltered became liable for Income and Capital Gains Tax, but rule changes mean that it can be passed on tax-free at death to the surviving spouse, or civil partner.

The surviving partner is then able to invest as much into their own ISA as their spouse/civil partner had at death, on top of their usual allowance.

However, the tax-efficient wrapper of an ISA does not apply if, for example, the surviving partner then dies and the ISA was left to another family member or beneficiary. In this instance, it may be subject to 40% tax, if the IHT threshold for the estate was exceeded, unless you've planned accordingly.

Please get in touch to find out more.

A stocks and shares ISA is a medium to long-term investment, which aims to increase the value of the money you invest for growth or income or both.

The value of investments and the income from them can go down as well as up and you may not get back the amount originally invested.

HM Revenue & Customs practice and the law relating to taxation are complex and subject to individual circumstances and changes which cannot be foreseen.

The Financial Conduct Authority does not regulate taxation and trust advice.

Lifetime ISA (LISA)

This scheme was introduced in April and is applicable to those aged 18-40.

It's designed for people buying their first home, or to be held in the ISA until they are 60 years-old, to help assist retirement planning. In these instances the investor will enjoy a tax-free withdrawal of funds from the scheme.

Additionally, the current proposals set out that you can save up to £4,000 each year, and get a government bonus of 25% (to a maximum of £1,000 each year, up to age 50). The bonus can only be realised if it goes towards your retirement, or your first home (which has to be located in the UK, your only residence, and up to a value of £450,000).

Lifetime ISAs can hold cash, stocks and shares qualifying investments, or a combination of both.

For those saving for retirement, be aware that you can withdraw the money at any time before you turn 60. BUT, you would have to pay a withdrawal charge of 25% of the amount you withdraw.

Contributions to this scheme will count towards the 2017/18 ISA allowance.

An evolving Investment Strategy

In the same way that your lifestyle will change over the years to reflect your differing needs, tastes, wealth, etc, so might your attitude to investments.

» In the early years of your working life you may feel more invincible, and inclined to take greater risks with your investments. Perhaps reasoning that you have got time ahead to recover any possible losses. Conversely, as you move closer to retirement, you may have a greater degree of wealth and a desire to protect what you now have, by adopting a more risk-averse strategy.

Additionally, your investment strategy will be influenced over the years by various life goals, such as:

- Meeting the costs of school fees, university, weddings, a new car and, maybe, the holiday-of-a-lifetime.
- Undertaking improvements to your current home, moving up the property ladder, or looking to secure an additional one elsewhere in the UK, or overseas.
- Providing a financial buffer to deliver breathing space should you face illness, unemployment, or unexpected household costs.
- Ability to offer financial support to help get your children (or grandchildren) onto the property ladder, or to assist your parents with long-term care.

Your approach

Broadly, if you were to consider four key asset classes: equities, property, fixed interest (ie. government gilts/corporate bonds) and cash - it's equities that are likely to deliver the greatest level of risk (and potential reward).

There's no rule that says you must have a balanced portfolio that embraces the asset classes mentioned above, or that you need to have it within a spread of UK and overseas sectors - but diversification possibly makes sense.

In which case, you may look at the current low return on savings, and feel that a hoped-for return on a range of equities may be something to also consider.* However, first take a look at the chart below which sets out seven key investment sectors and positions each sector's return over the last 10 years, with the best performers in descending order.

It quite clearly shows two immediate issues:

- First, investment returns can change markedly from year to year.
- Second, this can be more pronounced when looking at specific sectors.

For example, back in early 2016 you may, understandably, have taken a view to avoid 'Emerging Markets', as it delivered a 9.4% loss in 2015. Yet, by the end of 2016 it was the top performer, with 31.6% growth!

Help is at hand

We can't guarantee future winners, but we will have extensive market knowledge and various tools at our disposal to help make your investments as effective as possible.

Of course, everyone will have different objectives, which are partly dictated by life stage, attitude to risk, available funds, tax position, and also if you primarily require income or growth.

In light of the chart below, it shows it is sensible to 'diversify' and spread the investment net in order to deliver measured growth. And, in general, to play the longer-game, rather than chasing potential short-term fluctuations here and there.

So do get in touch if you want to talk further about your existing portfolio, or planned investment approach.

The value of investments and the income from them can go down as well as up and you may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance.

* These investments do not include the same security of capital which is afforded with a deposit account.

PENSIONS Landscape

The pensions environment has changed markedly over the last few years.

» Following the complete overhaul of the pensions system in April 2015, planholders, aged 55+, can draw down as much, or as little, of their defined contribution pension savings, at any time.

Since the introduction of the freedoms, we have seen over 2.75m payments being made, with £14.2bn withdrawn, equating to an average payout of around £5,200. Some of these payments would be part of multiple take-outs by certain individuals, as less than 1m people over this period were responsible for releasing the £14.2bn from their plans.

(Source: HM Revenue & Customs, October 2017)

The expanded range of choices leave pension holders with a number of options:

- Leave the pot untouched.
- Take out some, or all, as cash.
- Purchase an annuity.
- Opt for a flexible income, via a flexi-access drawdown scheme.
- Decide on a mix of the above, which, for example, could deliver a guaranteed income for life, yet leave some funds invested in the hope of future growth.

Tax issues

Put simply, the choice is yours, if aged 55 or more. But it's vital that you take advice to ensure you are fully aware of the opportunities and pitfalls.

For example, let's consider the tax position. The first 25% of the pension pot will be tax-free, either as one lump sum, or as the first 25% of multiple lump sums, with the remaining 75% being taxed at the individual's marginal rate.

So you'd need to be mindful that taking in excess of 25% as cash could generate a sizeable tax bill, and possibly push some into a higher income tax band.

And it's not just issues relating to taking out funds as cash, it's also important that you seek advice so that you know if, for example, the 'flexible' returns of the income drawdown route may be a better option than the guaranteed income of an annuity.

Pensions at Death

Further changes were made in this respect too, which delivers greater benefits for the pension holder's beneficiaries.

Prior to the changes, pensions that were still invested could be passed on at death, but a sizeable 55% tax was applied.

With the changes, the retirement pot of someone who dies before the age of 75 will, generally, no longer be taxed when passed on. Similar rules now apply to annuities, if it's a joint life one, or an annuity with a guaranteed term.

A pension pot passed on after the age of 75 will, generally, be taxed at the beneficiaries marginal rate. Again, annuities are treated similarly.

However, there are various caveats that may apply, so it's wise to discuss your own specific position, if applicable, in order to establish the best way forward for you.

Pensions take-up

Taking a step back to consider those who are still saving into a pension scheme, the government has also made great strides in this respect through the Workplace Pension. As it stands, around 7m people have been enrolled in the scheme, and more than 370,000 employers have declared that they have met their auto-enrolment duties.

Sizeable contributions

At the other end of the scale, if you've contributed a great deal into your pension scheme over the years then you need to be aware of the Lifetime Allowance. This was reduced for the 2016/17 tax year to £1m, and with effect from 6 April 2018 will increase annually at the Consumer Prices Index rate.

You usually pay tax if your pension pots are worth more than the lifetime allowance. Although, you might be able to protect them from reductions.
